

Report on Jap Cloth Is Expected Today

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(AP)—The president's special cabinet committee appointed to make studies of both emergency and long term problems of the cotton textile industry was expected to start its work this week, while congressional textile spokesmen continued their pressure for temporary action immediately. As the textile controversy subsided over the Easter week-end, important developments were in prospect during the coming week. These included a mass interview, probably Wednesday, which the president has promised to a bi-parliament group of some two-score house members; consideration by the house ways and means committee, also probably starting Wednesday, of the entire import question; and the declaration of the south's position at this week's meeting in Augusta, Ga., of the American Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

The Commerce Department is expected to make public tomorrow or Tuesday a report on imports of bleached cloth from Japan—a subject now being investigated by the tariff commission.

'All Men Shall Rise Again,' Says Holcomb in Sermon

Dr. Walt Holcomb, pastor of the Decatur First Methodist church, shown in his pulpit. Staff photo.

Editor's Note: The Constitution this morning presents the fifteenth of a series of features dealing with Atlanta ministers and their sermons. On succeeding Monday mornings, other clergymen will be shown in their pulpits, together with abstracts of their messages.

Dr. Walt Holcomb in his Easter sermon at the Decatur First Methodist church, of which he is pastor, spoke on "Life Again." His text was "If a Man Die, Shall He Live Again?" Job 14:14. An abstract of his sermon follows:

"This is the most universal question that has ever been asked. It is doubtful if anyone has lived long enough to understand death who has not raised this question.

"Job seems to have been laboring between doubt and faith, despair and hope, ignorance and knowledge, anticipation and realization. The little 'if' with which he begins his speculative reasoning flashes interrogation points on the screen of our minds.

"There is no question about man dying. If the silent, unreplying dead had as much title to the dirt of the earth as the active, responsive living, the world would be a universal graveyard.

"But the question is raised regarding life after death. 'Shall he live again?' inquires Job. While Job may have known little or nothing of science, philosophy, or psychology, his question places us in the realm of the natural, mental and moral.

Tells of Resurrection.
"In the context, Job tells us about the resurrection in the vegetable kingdom. A bulb placed in the earth, nurtured by the soil, fed by the rain and warmed by the sunshine, bursts forth into life again. He reasons from this fact through analogy and tries to satisfy his mind that when man is buried in the earth that he shall come forth some resurrection morn. Science in answering Job's question does not affirm or deny that after man is dead that he shall live again. The best science can say is it is impossible for man to live again.

"Some scientists who are very religious will answer the question for themselves in the affirmative. Other scientists with an agnostic leaning will answer for themselves in the negative.

"The psychologist is also at sea in the presence of this ancient, universal question. The relation of the human brain to the soul or mind of man determines his hope or despair. The materialistic psychologist says that the mind is a mist thrown off of the brain or a light created by the brain will tell you that when man dies that the soul or mind of man disappears.

The realistic psychologist who affirms that the brain is a creature of the mind will tell you that the mind survives after the brain dies. The evolutionary position would be that the soul is becoming more independent and free from itself from the direction of immortality. There is an uncertainty that arises in all psychological research, but the burden of proof is that it is probable that man shall live again.

Philosophy and Immortality.
Philosophy delves into the depths of mind and soul. The result has been that philosophy says it hopes that man will live again. A longing for immortality which has been expressed by human beings in all ages, in all nationalities is the philosophical basis for immortality. The Egyptians in building the pyramids and embalming their dead were led to this means of the preservation of the body so that the mummified body would be present to join the soul in the future. In the burial shroud they placed a label saying, 'Man shall live again.' The philosophy of the Greeks recognized that this longing for immortality should be satisfied.

This universal longing for immortality has found a place not only in primitive man but in the bosom of the world's greatest thinkers. Victor Hugo said, 'I feel immortality.' Tennyson has sung of immortal life when he said, 'I hope to see my pilot face to face, when I put out to sea.'

"Moral philosophy in answer to Job's question says that man ought to live again. There are injustices, inhumanities and inequalities in this life, and it requires another life to right these wrongs. While there is a law of retribution running through this life and many people are suffering injustices, inhumanities and inequalities as a just recompense for what they have done, nevertheless in all ages some of the strong have pressed the weak and wrong has been personified on the throne, while right has been desecrated on the gallows.

"Men, women and children, dead and alive, have suffered and are suffering from wrongs committed against them. Moral philosophy which works in the domain of right and wrong declares that there ought to be a balance of life in order to complete the eternal developments which God had in mind when he made man.

Christianity's Teachings.
"Christianity declares that man shall live again. Its voice is the only one of absolute certainty. Away back in the long ago Job, while peering into the future said, 'I know that My Redeemer liveth, and that he shall appear at the last day, and when I have known little or nothing of science, philosophy, or psychology, in my flesh I shall see God.'

"Jesus Christ went ahead of Confucius, Buddha, Mohammed, Socrates, Plato and other ancient sages, and declared, 'I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in Me, though he were dead yet shall live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die.' He brought life and immortality to light in the dark regions of the soul from the dawn of time, but it was only when Christ came that the darkness of windows were opened and the closed doors swung ajar and life and immortality came to light.

"This Easter morn, the anniversary of the resurrection of our Lord, is a foretoken and foregleam of the resurrection of our loved ones and ourselves. Of all the graves in the world there is but one self-empty tomb, that in the garden of Joseph near the hill of Calvary, which gave up Christ. With that one empty tomb we are guaranteed that, at the last day every other grave shall open and the sea shall give up her dead, and that all men shall rise again, some to eternal life and others to everlasting shame."

WHITLEY CITY, Ky., April 21. (AP)—Three men were held in jail here today in connection with the killing of Sherman Keith, 30, while on his way from services at the Hilltop Holiness church five miles from here last night.

Keith, walking along the road near the church with his six-year-old stepdaughter, was shot in the head and killed instantly. The daughter, whom he was holding by the hand, fell with him but was not hurt.

'Chillun' of 'Holy Man of Harlem' March, Chant 'Private' Holy Music

NEW YORK, April 21.—(UP)—Father Divine, the "Holy Man of Harlem," had his own "private" Easter parade today with some 5,000 of his disciples through the streets of the largest negro district of the new world.

Bizarre and almost fantastic, with uniforms of blue, red, black and white, the parade was a display of strength, financed by his own Harlem collections. It also serves, they said, to keep his "chillun" and prospective followers out of the regular churches.

One division of the "private" Easter parade was comprised of a Father Divine youth organization, hundreds of little girls in green skirts, white blouses, sweaters and berets, who chanted home-made hymns in piping voices.

Clapping their hands in rhythm and rapture, throngs of negro adults formed another section—shouting, "Peace! It's wonderful!" They wore white sailor caps on which were lettered the word "God."

Some of the male marchers were garbed in silk hats and voluminous fur-lined overcoats. The official New York temperature at 3 p. m. was 70 degrees.

The dusky cavalry contingent was made up of nearly 100 young women, nattily attired in riding habits and shiny patent-leather boots, who rode horses at the head of the Easter parade. A band played "Private" by Father Divine's "private" holy music and scores of marching drummers beat a jungle tom-tom cadence.

A score of fiddlers rendered a Harlem hymn to the tune of "Casey Jones." The parade was nearly a mile long and included in it 15 chartered buses packed with fervent disciples of Father Divine.

Other followers were conveyed in a fleet of Harlem taxicabs—some-times called "rolling love nests"—by the police—transformed into sacred chariots by gaudy streamers of paper bunting.

There were also several floats, one of which had a huge photograph of Father Divine as its sole motif and others, which depicted him as feeding a group of plump elderly negroes. "I thank you, Father!" read the sign on the latter.

"Father Divine's Infinite, Universal Peace Mission or Christ in the Second Advent," declared another banner.

A shiny brass plate resembling a notary public's shingle was mounted on the radiator cap of the cult leader's luxurious limousine. "Father Divine," it read, simply. Above it was a huge replica of a white dove, with the lettered word, "Peace."

Colorful Easter parade in S. Y. loses prestige. New York, April 21.—(AP)—Many familiar faces were missing today from the Easter parade, among them those of the Vanderbilts.

Nary a Vanderbilt appeared on Fifth or Park avenues, nor did many another social favorite. It might be that the fashionable stroll isn't what it used to be.

Park claimed much of the silk-hat trade, with the afternoon show on Fifth running to propaganda, sandwich boards and girls in pajamas.

Small crowd attends Moravian ceremonies. Winston-Salem, N. C., April 21.—(AP)—The smallest crowd in 15 years plodded through steady rain today to attend the picturesque dawn Easter service of the home Moravian church.

Chief Usher Walter Hege estimated the crowd at 5,000. The throng walked the half mile from the little brick church in Old Salem to the Moravian burying ground known as "God's Acre," where the service was concluded amid the slab-topped graves of early Moravian settlers.

The service started at the church portico with the traditional announcement of Bishop J. Kenneth Pfohl, of the Southern Moravian province: "The Lord is risen."

And, as they have done since 1753, the congregation chorused the reply: "The Lord is risen indeed."

Dust-choked west worships, asks rain. Lamar, Col., April 21.—(AP)—Dust-battered voices mingled Easter peans with prayers for resurrecting rains today in churches throughout the diminishing drought-blighted area of the high southwest plains.

Rains that have narrowed the drought section on all sides in the last week brought renewed hope that the entire territory soon might receive relief.

A bright sun shone today over much of the stricken region, where darkening rain clouds would be a more joyous sight, but there was thankfulness for the absence of the nerve-wracking deluge of silt and sand.

Denizens of Beale street strut Easter day finery. Memphis, Tenn., April 21.—(AP)—Beale street paraded today in the kindly Easter sunshine.

Every man and woman with a job had on a new pair of shoes and ever little girl wore a ribbon in her hair.

The older folks sat in the W. O. Hardy park and talked of the weather and the "young folks" of today, while the courting element strutted up and down past the fish-parlors and soft drink stands.

From the foot of Beale, where it dips into Old Man Mississippi river, as far east as where the residential section meets the street car barns, the "darkies" displayed their Easter finery.

Although two or three of the old generation in the R. R. Church auditorium yard wore new high topped shoes and box back coats reminiscent of another generation, Beale street's men folks, for the most part, were attired in Main street's latest fashion.

The women folks, too, wore Dame Fashion's latest creations, although a few of them were about in new evening dresses as early as 9 a. m.

Half million celebrate on Atlantic city boards. Atlantic City, N. J., April 21.—(AP)—Humanity surged up and on Atlantic City's board walk today in one of the greatest Easter parades the resort has ever known.

Threatening clouds that hovered over the city for the greater part of the day failed to stem the rush for the fashion display and when rain drops began to fall shortly before 4 o'clock the spectacle had passed its zenith.

Official estimates placed the crowd at 500,000 and experts selecting the 100 best-dressed women had difficulty weaving through the throng to pin corsages on those honored.

Flush kidneys of acid and poisons. Stop Getting Up Nights. When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—often passage is scanty and smart and burns—sleep is restless and night visits to the bathroom are frequent.

The right harmless and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—you won't be disappointed—but be sure and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic. Remember also that other symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble are back-ache, leg cramps, puffy eyes, moist palms and nervousness.—(adv.)

FRANCO-RUSS RIFT HALTS BARGAINING FOR ARMS TREATY

recent Stress conference and during the subsequent action at Geneva.

The French declare it is their intention to resume conversations leading to a pact with Russia partly because of the fact Czechoslovakia is negotiating a similar mutual assistance accord with the soviets and the French are anxious to keep their alliance with the Little Entente intact.

Czechoslovakia apparently came to terms with the soviets without difficulty, and their pact is expected to be signed in June when Foreign Minister Eduard Benes visits Moscow.

The newspaper Salut Public, of Lyons, published what it said was the text of a secret treaty signed in Germany and Poland February 25, 1934, under which both governments agreed to pool their military, economic and financial resources, to support each other.

The Polish government, said the Lyons newspaper, "will have to explain it."

"The German foreign office in Berlin flatly denied the story with the comment that it had been 'explosion' so many times that we ought not to have to deny it again."

Official comment was not obtainable in Warsaw, but informed circles there said Foreign Minister Joseph Beck's vote at Geneva with the rest of the powers in condemnation of German rearmament "didn't look as if the two countries were completely dovetailing their policies."

The purported Polish-German pact was apparently directed mainly against Russia, according to Salut.

COMMUNIST PARTIES SUMMON ANTI-NAZI DEMONSTRATIONS. MOSCOW, April 21.—(AP)—The communist parties of 10 European countries joined today in an appeal to the working classes for demonstrations against the German Nazis and for a pledge of aid to the soviet union in case it is attacked.

The appeal was published in Pravda, the communist party organ of the U. S. S. R. It charged that "German imperialists and their Japanese and Polish allies are provoking war."

It was by the central committee of the communist parties of Germany, France, England, Poland, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Austria, Hungary and Lithuania.

It concluded with a suggestion for an eastern pact.

Pastor Chides His Flock With Christmas Greeting

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(UP)—The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the house of representatives, greeted a packed audience at the Calvary Methodist Episcopal church today with the remark: "I know some of you won't be back until next Easter, so let me wish you a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year."

DE VALERA DECLAINS AGAINST REPUBLIC NOW. DUBLIN, April 21.—(AP)—Standing bareheaded in a driving rain, massed thousands—many strongly in favor of immediate action toward establishing a republic—listened in stony silence today as President Eamon de Valera declared "the time has not yet come for proclamation of a republic."

The ceremony commemorating the men who fell in the Easter uprising of 1916 went off smoothly, unmarred by an expected clash between the supporters of De Valera and the Irish republican army which, challenging the president's right to speak for their fallen comrades, held their own services at Glas Nevin cemetery.

"I want an early republic," De Valera said after unveiling a memorial in the new general postoffice to the men of 1916, "but the time to raise the proud monument of the work here begun has not yet come. Such a monument can be raised only when the work is triumphantly completed."

The "immediate organization of joint negotiations for demonstrations against the German fascist instigations to war and on behalf of the peaceful policy of the soviet union."

May 1 should be made the occasion of an initial demonstration, the proposal said. It appealed for the cooperation of socialists and the democratic parties of eight of the countries named, the labor and independent parties and the workers' party of England and the revolutionary socialists of Austria.

"The German fascists are planning an imperialistic war," the appeal said, "and will direct their weapons against the country of socialist construction. But the power of this country—the soviet union—will break every wave that fascism hurls against it."

All who wish to oppose the military provocations of German imperialism and its Japanese and Polish allies must now step out for the peaceful policy of the soviet union and the conclusion of an eastern pact.

Mexico Trade Aided By Silver Act—Daniels

NEW YORK, April 21.—(AP)—The silver policy of the United States "has justified itself and has greatly helped Mexico," Josephus Daniels, American ambassador to Mexico and former secretary of the navy, asserted tonight.

Ambassador Daniels returned on the Orizaba for a six-week vacation during which he will visit his home in Raleigh, N. C., attend the convention of the Associated Press in New York, and confer with Washington officials.

"The Mexican people feel greatly indebted to the Roosevelt administration because of its silver policy," he said. "As one of the chief silver producing countries of the world, Mexico has been enriched by reason of the large increase in the price of silver."

"Not only has this increased price of gold and silver greatly enhanced the prosperity of Mexico, but it has reacted to the benefit of the United States, because the purchasing powers of Mexico has been increased."

OFFICE RANSACKED, YOUNG SUSPECT HELD. When friends had advised police of threats allegedly made by Frank Constantine, alias F. Constantine, Folio, 20, of a Lee street address, to "kill someone," patrolman took him to the office of the J. E. Harris Company, at 154 Walker street, where he had been employed, and found the office of the company had been ransacked.

The officers reported that the combination and the hinges had been battered from the door of the safe.

Folio was arrested on suspicion of burglary and police were holding a box of cigars which, friends of the man said, according to police reports, Folio had taken from the offices of the company.

LARGE CROWD VIEWS FUNERAL FOR DE BOE. PADUCAH, Ky., April 21.—(AP)—A crowd larger than the one that saw William T. De Boe, 23-year-old white man, hanged as a rapist at Smithland Good Friday attended a public funeral for him here this Easter Sunday.

Several thousand persons milled in front of the modest bungalow home of J. E. Carter, a cousin, at the edge of Paducah for an open-air funeral service and another crowd about as large assembled at Oak Grove cemetery for the burial. Carter had invited "friends and sympathizers" of De Boe to attend the funeral.

Although the crowds were orderly, police reserves were called out to direct traffic on two main highways near the Carter home.

1 Drowned, 1 Hurt In Airplane Dive

TROY, N. Y., April 21.—(AP)—One man was drowned and another injured critically when a privately owned airplane went into a nose dive and crashed into a small creek near West Lebanon, 20 miles east of here, late today.

Edward Griswold, of West Lebanon, 25-year-old garage proprietor, drowned before rescuers could extricate him from the plane in about eight feet of water.

The pilot, Raymond Serren, 45, a telephone company line foreman who took up flying as a hobby, was removed after the plane had been sawed apart.

He is near death in the House of Mercy hospital in Pittsfield, Mass., suffering from two broken ribs, internal injuries and shock.

NERVES VS. NOISE

While the rest of the world is striving to reduce the unnecessary noises of modern civilization, the people of the United States, according to an article by Dr. E. E. Lee in the current issue of the Forum, seem to be willing to allow their nerves to be frayed by useless and preventable noises.

Pointing out that a world-wide noise-prevention campaign has been under way for 10 years, and that fine results have been secured in London through the co-operation of the British minister of transport, this well-known writer says:

Only in American cities, where the present antinuclear campaign began and where the greatest steps have been taken in the engineering side of noise reduction, has there been no real effort to profit by the London experience or to reduce noise otherwise than by restraint of inconsiderate citizens. When the medals for successful noise reduction are handed out, American engineers will get a big one. American municipal officials, however, will be presented with a microscopic decoration.

The quieting of many of the cities of the world is attributed to two sources—better engineering that has brought less noise in the operation of auto cars, street railways and industrial machinery, and the arousal of public sentiment against needless noises. Automobile motors are now practically noiseless, the heinous "cut-out" has been banned, street cars, railway cars and subways are far quieter, and the airplane is approaching the point where it can be operated without deafening either passengers or public. Such implements of industry in contrast to the models of former years. Even the rattling cans of early morning milk deliveries have been largely relegated to the past.

On a one-week trial basis, the city government of London placed a ban on the blowing of automobile horns between 11:30 at night and 7 in the morning. So pleased were the people of the city with the new quiet during the hours of sleep that the regulations were made permanent and soon extended throughout Great Britain.

The fear that the ban against horn tooting might increase accidents was found to be groundless, the number of crashes being reduced because motorists, unable to blow their horns, passed crossings and other cars more carefully.

The experience in Britain confirms that of other European cities where it has been found that unnecessary horn-blowing increases, rather than decreases, the accident rate.

The progress toward quieter cities has also been marked in Far Eastern cities. When the automobile was new to the orientals it was found necessary to require that every automobile have two horns in order that it might clear its way through crowded streets.

The din of Japanese cities finally became so unbearable that by governmental edict last summer cars were permitted to carry only bulb-operated horns, of musical tones. When the zero hour for the motor-operated horns was reached, a pall of silence fell upon the tortured eardrums and nerves of the Japanese—and, as in Europe, the accident rate has decreased.

Atlanta is no exception to other American cities in the apparent indifference to unnecessary traffic noises. When temporary traffic jams occur it is not unusual for an entire line of motorists to "sit down" on their horns, despite the presence of traffic officers doing their best to straighten things out, and regardless of the workers in nearby offices and commercial establishments.

At night, especially in the suburban residential sections, the hours of sleep are made hideous by thoughtless motorists needlessly blowing their horns as they dash along the streets and roads.

Much of the fatigue at the end of the day is caused by the constant wearing on the nerves of unnecessary noises. America should follow the example of other sections of the world and put a legal ban on such unnecessary accompaniments of modern civilization.

TRAFFIC'S STARTLING TOLL

Statistics gathered by the National Safety Council on deaths and injuries resulting from motor vehicle accidents bring the startling revelation that, on the basis of 1934 figures, the total number injured during the next 25 years will be equal to one-half of the population of the country.

In other words, one out of every two persons in the United States can expect injury in an automobile accident during the next quarter of a century.

Furthermore the Safety Council figures reveal that during 1935, if the 1934 rate is maintained, one out of every 100 persons in the United States will be injured, and one out of every 3,500 killed in traffic crashes.

Even in the case of pedestrians alone, one out of 400 will be injured and one out of 8,000 killed.

Approximately 1,250,000 men, women and children—one per cent of the population—were injured in automobile accidents during the past year and more than 37,000 killed. It is not difficult to substantiate the estimates of the Safety Council when these staggering figures are considered.

In no war in its history has America suffered such tremendous losses in life and injuries, and no threat with which the country has ever been faced—whether from war, pestilence or any other source—has ever carried such certainty of loss and suffering as lies in each year's automobile accidents.

Not until America gains a better realization of the uselessness of these tragic losses and an era of better regulations and enforcement of sane driving comes will the country emerge from the pall of the dread toll from traffic crashes on city streets and rural highways.

COLLEGIATE OPINIONS

In a discussion of the new prominence being given to student participation in matters bearing on the public welfare, the Chicago Tribune warns of the danger to be found in the fact that while youth is skeptical "its skepticism does not turn upon itself but rather upon the experience and opinions of the world that have preceded it."

The Tribune further cites that "in all colleges everywhere there has been for centuries this young revolutionary movement, very little critical of its own mental process and of its own information and violently critical of what has preceded it," and expresses the opinion that "the decisiveness of these young opinions does not square with the fact and is engaged in what he is doing on the theory that he is preparing himself for the exercise of mature judgment. If he has already arrived at these mature judgments he is wasting his time in seeking a basis for them. He will discover that within 10 years, if he has been worthy of his training, he has modified all those opinions, and within 20 years he may have completely reversed them. All at times, if his education has taken effect, he will preserve a curiosity which will test his opinions before he imposes them on his own mind or on anyone else's."

In the impetuosity and lack of experience of youth lies the most serious danger in the growth of radical teaching in many of the colleges of the United States. College students are naturally of an inquisitive mind and while they spend four years in academic halls to gain information to prepare them to meet the problems they will encounter in future, they should not be exposed to the dangers arising out of the study of radical "isms," without care being exercised to keep them from becoming mentally warped because of the lack of that insight that comes only with mature years.

Judgment and calm decision come only with experience, and the youth of the country should not be submitted to the danger of radicalism before their minds and their characters have been strengthened by contact with the problems of life.

According to a cable, Hitler's "blunt warning" to England was "sharply worded." No wonder our diplomacy cannot cope with the wily European.

It is estimated the western tree belt will be 35 years growing. By a coincidence our grandchildren will receive the belt and the bill at the same time.

An argument rages in New England as to why the Pilgrim fathers passed up Provincetown for Plymouth. Maybe the barns were full of actors.

THE WORD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Dramatic

Signor Mussolini has again made a striking "We are prepared" speech, and has announced that another 150,000 young men of 24 are called to the colors at a dramatic moment on the eve of the diplomatic meeting in Paris. This is in keeping with the fascist government's thesis, repeated in the press this afternoon, that it is better to be forearmed against any possible eventuality.

There is at the same time in Italy a feeling of sympathy for the German point of view about armaments, combined with disapproval of her methods. Some of the 300,000 Italian which has already done its military service, was called up recently to bring the Gavianna and Peloritana divisions up to war strength and to form the two new divisions, Gavianna II and Peloritana II. The 1913 class, that is, those born in that year, have just completed their 18 months' training, but are not being demobilized until the European situation improves, as was announced by General Balotrochi, under secretary of state for war, in the chamber recently and the 1914 class are being mobilized as from April 1. This means three classes under arms, composed of about 220,000 men each, or a total of 660,000 men under arms. Quite an army. And all to keep peace?

A Fortunate Issue.

The formal transfer of the old Chinese Eastern railway (now called the North Manchurian railway) took place at Harbin and the yellow Manchukuo flag, with the red, white, blue and black bars in the corner, supplanted the combined USSR and Manchukuo flags on the railway mainstays. The Manchukuo minister of communication read a decree at the meeting of the directors dissolving the board. At the same time in Tokyo, the Manchukuo ambassador handed a cheque of yen 25,000,000, being one-sixth of the purchase price, which is approximately $50,000,000, two-thirds of which will be paid in goods, the remainder in cash in Manchukuo bonds.

Speaking at the transfer ceremony Mr. Hirota, the Japanese foreign minister, spoke optimistically of the future relations between Japan and Russia. By selling the railway Russia has accepted the inevitable, and has renounced her former predominant influence in North Manchuria. The Chinese Eastern railway, which crossed Manchuria to Vladivostok, was a branch line south towards Port Arthur, marked the height of Russian imperial expansion. The C. E. R. has been the cause of many diplomatic complications, and since the war has gone steadily downhill, especially since Russia reclaimed most of the modern rolling-stock to soviet territory at the beginning of the Manchurian incident. Disappointed though it became, the C. E. R. nevertheless maintained an atmosphere of decayed European grandeur, and the further link of continental Europe. Now it will be assimilated with the Manchurian State railways, which are run by Japanese on American lines.

Health Talks

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

TOO MUCH SALT WEAKENS THE BODY.

There is approximately a table-spoonful of salt (sodium chloride) excreted from the body daily. The average man ingests that much salt daily, although from one-half to one teaspoonful of salt is enough for good functional health; at least, it will be so if the salt intake has been reduced to half a teaspoonful a day.

Steel furnace workers, stokers and others who are subjected to excessive heat with great exertion or to extreme heat alone, are likely to suffer from what is variously called "water poisoning," "heat cramps," "stoker's colic." This is a condition of violent muscular cramps occurring through excessive sweating the store of salt in the blood and tissues has been depleted, and the salt, either dissolved in the drinking water, or swallowed in the form of a tablet, or with some highly salted morsel of food. Persons who suffer from cramps from extremely hot weather should remember that plenty of salt as well as plenty of water is more refreshing than water or any beverage without salt.

Many gourmands acquire the habit of seasoning everything excessively with salt, although the salt naturally present in such foods as milk, meat, eggs, and cheese, is sufficient for all needs of the body if the diet is not restricted. One who is following a diet largely vegetarian gets less salt and may seasonously use more salt as a condiment.

The practice of salting butter and cheese in the making is much overdone, whether from perverted taste or from a desire to sell salt, butter or cheese price. People who never eat "sweet" (unsalted) butter will be pleased with this natural food if they will eat it in place of the salted kind for a few days.

Too much salt in or on food masks the real flavor of the food, though the proper use of salt brings out the zest of many foods which lack it. The habit of adding salt to everything blunts the finer taste sense and robs the gourmand of much of the pleasure of eating. Some people smother food with salt, pepper, mustard and other condiments in a vain endeavor to cover heinous cooking.

The use of considerable salt is necessary in the curing and preserving of meats and fish, but by soaking such food in water for hours and then boiling and throwing away the salt water, much of the salt may be removed and the flavor of the food greatly improved.

More salt means more water retained in the body cells and tissues. There means overweight, or flabby water-logged state of the body, whether there is actual dropsy or not. This bogging down from too much salt is a common explanation of flabbiness and weakness. No one can expect to attempt to subvert on a "salt-free" diet unless under supervision of his physician, but any one whose health and vigor are not up to par may well give some thought to correcting the error of consuming too much salt.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

(Copyright, 1935, by Paul Mallon.)
TRIMMED WASHINGTON, April 21.—For the first time in the history of the New Deal it was outwitted the other day on publicity. And the funny part about it was that the job was done by the staid old Brookings Institute, an influential endowed research body which shuns publicity.

There was a fine keen on the inside when the Brookings report, criticizing the NRA severely, came out the same day that General Johnson was hogging the news headlines with a defense of the NRA. The truth seems to be that Brookings was the innocent tool of some NRA foe. Credit for publication of its report is being given, justly or unjustly, to mild-mannered Senator King, of Utah, who hates the NRA even in his sleep. Senator King is supposed to have heard that the report was not to be released until later and asked for copies of it.

Brookings obliged by sending him 24 rough page proofs. He knew what to do with them. He made them a part of the senate finance committee record. Thus they became available for newspaper publication.

REVERBERATIONS NRA Gander Pichberg was caught completely off guard, and did not expect the joke. Next day he is said to have summoned a responsible Brookings official and, in his own quiet way, pointed out that such an elementary institution should not hiss the administration's act, at least not right at the dramatic climax.

Mr. Pichberg also dropped a few choice words in the hearings of L. C. Marshall, an NRA board member, because Mr. Marshall is connected with Brookings and signed the Brookings report. This may hasten Marshall's departure from NIRA.

The hard-hitting report received far more attention in the Washington upper strata than it did in the newspapers. It revived in senatorial minds the talk of scrapping the whole NRA idea.

TIME Several business leaders were sitting around talking over the outlook frankly a few days ago. The way they figured it out, the essentials of the situation are these:

The date to look forward to is the one when congress will adjourn (probably mid-summer). The Washington end of the business picture will then change automatically. Uncertainties which now are supposed to be disturbing certain businessmen (NRA reorganization, bonus, bank bill, devaluation, holding company bill, etc.) will then have been disposed of one way or another.

The following 90 days, therefore, probably will tell the tale about the "level to be expected for this year's business." If anything outstanding is to be accomplished, that is the time for it. Next year is an election year and business is always more or less jittery at such times.

It would not be surprising if the New Deal put on a mid-summer business drive with good chances of success.

SLAM A new high for frankness has been established by a certain large utility corporation.

It was required under the New Deal law to file with the securities and exchange commission the prospectus of a proposed $70,000,000 bond issue.

This prospectus not only listed the ordinary hazards of investment these days, but mentioned the New Deal itself as one.

Specifically, it pointed to the proposed utility holding company bill and the prospect of inflation.

HOUSING

Several important industrialists are working on a new idea to expand the pre-fabricated home building industry. They are to meet privately in an Indiana city shortly in an effort to get the larger interested corporations together on a coordinated plan. Those who are expected to attend the conference included Owen Young, Gerard Swope, Clarence Woolley.

The idea is to market a sturdy house on the installment plan for as little as $3,000. The trouble with the industry now seems to be high construction costs.

The meeting will have the administration blessing, although perhaps not openly.

WORDS No one here became very excited about the harsh words which the allies expressed against Germany at the Stress meeting.

What particularly amused our statesmen was the language employed in the denunciatory resolution drawn up by Messrs. Laval, MacDonald and Mussolini. The most important sentence in it condemned the Germans for having failed in the duty "which lies with all members in the international community to respect undertakings which they have contracted."

One of the highest of United States officials yawned when he read that, and observed:

"What about their war debts to us?"

FACTS The language employed by the allies also seemed to be self-condemnatory in another respect. Part V of the Versailles treaty says that the disarmament of Germany was based on the intention of the other powers to "initiate a general limitation of armaments." This sounds off-key in view of the recent failure of arm limitation efforts in Europe and elsewhere.

The whole current European story is told by the fact that, since 1919, Europe has signed no fewer than 200 treaties to guarantee peace. And today war is more threatening than when the first treaty was signed.

The Heart That Truly Mourns Feels No Need of Hired Mourners

By Robert Quillen.

Year by year, in ways both subtle and brazen, this Christian land of ours becomes more pagan. And year by year our methods of honoring the dead become more elaborate and more expensive.

Rightly understood, any custom that prescribes the manner of showing grief is an offense to good taste. If the counterfeiting of any human emotion violates right and decency, surely this is true of grief for the dead. Mourning should be free of any suspicion of pretense or hypocrisy. And since no two people feel the same measure of grief, or react to it in the same way, the effort of one to copy the behavior of others is not a tribute to the dead but a tribute to public opinion.

Early Americans buried their dead simply. The body was placed in a newly-made box of unpainted pine and carried to the grave on the shoulders of friends and neighbors.

That custom was prompted by necessity, and therefore was sincere, elemental and dignified.

The mourning veil was equally unaffected, for instinctive good taste suggested it. Its function was to hide the swollen and distorted face of grief from the curious eyes of strangers.

But the custom of wearing black for a set period, however, sincere in the beginning, soon became a meaningless ritual. It was not an expression of grief, which is private, but an advertisement of it.

Why wear black for a year? If it expresses grief, does grief end and the heart grow merry on the 366th day? Worn as a true expression of sorrow, it would be discarded by one person in six months, by another in ten years. Worn for a set period, it is merely a concession to public opinion.

Interest in public opinion doubtless explains fancy funerals, also. It is another way of keeping up with the Joneses.

That isn't always true, but the bereaved wish to honor their dead. Moreover, they represent themselves for past neglect, and their shame is diminished by spending more than they can afford and thus removing themselves.

It is the motive that matters—not the cost. If grief is genuine and its method of expression unaffected, nothing it does is vulgar or offensive. The pagan and shameful display, whether much or little, is the one made to be seen and approved by the public.

Labor Chiefs Called

For Capitol Parley

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(UP) President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, tonight called a nation-wide conference of trade union leaders here beginning April 29 to fight for labor legislation threatened with defeat in congress.

The call includes not only representatives of national and international unions but agents of state central bodies. Green estimated the conferees would speak directly for 6,000,000 workers and indirectly for 10,000,000 employees of all crafts.

The legislative situation existing in congress, particularly as it relates to pending measures in which the American Federation of Labor is deeply interested, calls for special consideration immediately, Green said.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Hoover's Straw NEW YORK, April 21.—Is this Mr. Hoover, of Palo Alto, Cal., who has been poking his head out of the house lately and wetting a finger to see which way the wind is blowing, the same Mr. Hoover who was president of the U. S. A., a few years ago?

If so, that would be the man who thought prohibition was an experiment noble in purpose, but kidded the citizens by calling for an investigation of the whole subject which he then repudiated because the findings didn't verify the nobility of the amendment. Yes, that would be the same man. Would you have imagined after what happened to him and his experiment in the fall of 1932 that he would ever have the nerve to offer any suggestions again?

Conditions under Mr. Hoover's favorite experiment were so wild and crazy that it is now hard to believe that they ever existed. But memory distinctly says they did.

Memory Fresh

On Dry Evils. Memory recalls that in the state where the disease set in, there was a time when the country constables were smashing into the homes of the citizens, holding up cars along the roads, even walking right into hotel rooms with passkeys and going through people's baggage like customs inspectors searching for liquor. If a man and the loving old lady happened to be sitting around the kitchen table of an evening, gnawing at a couple of drams of salivage-water, the constables would kick in the door, toss the furniture hither and yon, punch them around a somewhat, and then walk them down the road to a prohibition court where they would be fined for violating the United States constitution. The constables got a cut out of it.

Sometimes, the citizens would manage to make the sink before the law broke through, and dump glasses and the bottle down the drain. But that didn't always work, either, for there were cases in which the law would open the little trap in the pipe under the sink and drain out a few drops for evidence. They even sopped up evidence on sponges and, sure, was the terror in those days under Mr. Hoover's pet experiment, that this evidence was accepted as good.

Liquor Breath.

There were a few signs warning the guests that their rooms were subject to invasion and search at any time.

Prison Term.

Indiana was even worse. In Indiana, where a man could be sent to jail or prison if he was found to be drinking.

There he lived, and he lived in a reasonable maturity one seeks to peek behind the thing he is today. . . . He has been around and lived in many climates. . . . But now to things he likes.

Unavoidably there comes a tale of public housing in this land. . . . But hold.

U. S. Defended

Murders. The government was put in the position of defending murders when the federal agents lost their tempers and shot the man who had been arrested on suspicion that they were running liquor. In Washington, a United States senator was shot through the head by a prohibition agent who was shelling a petty bootlegger in the streets, and died a horrible, lingering death, but Mr. Hoover's conviction was firm.

The emancipation proclamation was issued by Mr. Roosevelt in 1862, and during the time that it was being debated in congress, it was a hot topic of conversation. It consisted of just a few words. "From this hour," he hollered, "prohibition is decreed. And within his first year as president it was wiped out."

The early Scots, the people who gave Scotland her name, came from Ireland!

Marriages took place, and the Picts and Scots made common cause.

Bands of Norsemen reached Scotland and settled there, and a mixture also took place with Saxons who had come north from England.

Scotland has been called a land of "stern and wild beauty." It is well supplied with rain, and there is a fine growth of green grass and trees, as well as the famed "heather." We may use a word which has been favored by the Scotch, and say that Scotland is "bonny"—for it has beauty which makes many visitors exclaim with joy.

Scotland has very nearly the same area as Ireland, and also contains about the same number of people—not quite five million. This is counting all of Ireland.

The Irish Free State, which does not include North Ireland, is not so large and does not have so many people as Scotland.

For centuries Scotland was a free nation, and had its own line of kings and queens. One of the famous monarchs was Mary, Queen of Scots. She ruled during the time of Queen Elizabeth. After a revolt against her in Scotland, she fled to England, where she was placed in prison and later put to death. The charge against her was that she had plotted to take the throne from Elizabeth.

After the death of the Queen Elizabeth, a Scotch monarch did obtain the English throne. He was the son of Mary, Queen of Scots, and is called James VI and I.

His reign marked the union of England and Scotland.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

A young woman writes that she would like a full discussion of choosing a life mate, with special emphasis on masculine weaknesses that make marriage difficult for a wife. This fact is both pathetic and humorous, but true: a woman in love with a man can marry him, forgive him any weakness he may have, adjust herself to any sort of difficulties his weakness involves and be reasonably happy in spite of everything to the contrary. Cold-blooded analysis of character would have kept her from marrying him. But a woman in love can seldom exercise cold-blooded judgment and so nature takes care of the race.

An excessively selfish man, a jealous man, a stingy man, a philanderer, or a drunk addict are the chief hazards as husbands. But we all know women who have married these types and haven't regretted it, except temporarily as we all regret our choices while we are suffering acutely as a result of them. An old lady whose sons-in-law haven't been a source of great pride to her remarked the other day that she hoped her granddaughter wouldn't get married until she was old enough to know what sort of a man to marry. Her daughter replied tartly, "When she is old enough to answer that riddle, she will be too old to get married. I had rather she would go on and take a chance while she is young, do what I did, marry the man she loves, take him for better and for worse, and make the best of it."

The woman that marries a man whose mother has spoiled him and made him feel that women exist merely to minister to his pleasure, to wait on him, take orders from him, pet him and pamper him, must make up her mind to go through with the program. There is not a Chinaman's chance that he will ever make any concession to her, consider her wishes when they clash with his, or try to get her viewpoint when it is out of agreement with his. Some women can take this and apparently like it.

The jealous lover is certainly going to be a more jealous husband. He marks out a strict course for his wife from whom she is not to deviate one inch. No matter how exemplary she is, no matter what evidence she gives of devotion and loyalty to him, he will never cease to be jealous of her and to torment her with his jealousy if she is left alone a minute with another man, or if she so much as smiles sweetly at one on the street. Doubtless, who must have been consumed with jealousy himself because he wrote so wisely about the subject, said that as long as the loved one was out of sight the jealous man was tormented beyond endurance, plagued with a thousand ungrounded fears, incited to peep and snoop and humiliate his loved one. Then, when she proved her innocence, he forgave her, was loving and apologetic—just until the next separation when all was to be done over again. Some women marry jealous husbands and are immeasurably flattered by the implications, believing that the jealousy is proof of consuming affection which they are lucky to elicit.

The stingy man is one of nature's curses on woman kind. Stinginess is a special brand of selfishness and narrow-mindedness. Benjamin Franklin said a stingy man would give up every kind of comfortable living, the pleasure of doing good, the esteem of friends and acquaintances rather than spend his money. There is not much to be said for him.

A Baby For You?

If you are denied the blessing of a baby all your own and yearn for baby's arms and a baby's smile do not give up hope. Just write in confidence to Mrs. Mildred Owens, 2911-K Coates House, Kansas City, Mo., and she will tell you about a simple home method that helped her after being denied 15 yrs. Many others say this has helped bless their lives. Write now and try for this wonderful happiness.—(adv.)

room in the heart of a man for a wife or family. The woman who takes him on has to give up these things, too, or continue the money bout with him throughout her days.

The philanderer is the chief heart-breaker for a woman. He is constitutionally incapable of fidelity to any woman. The qualities that make him charming to one woman make him charming to all women and it frequently happens that the wife, whom he has outraged repeatedly, can't bring herself to quit him, though life with him is perpetual humiliation and heartache.

The drink addict, no matter how loving and kind, is a trying husband. His will is weak and grows weaker. He may love his wife, and want to please her but he can't do it if his habit interferes. Sober, he is one man; under the influence of drink, he may be quite another. He is Jekyll and Hyde and the wife can never be sure which he will be at any time. Yet there are women who say, as one recently said, "I had rather have a husband who drank than one who was stingy."

These are masculine weaknesses that make marriage difficult for wives. When a woman falls in love she skips over them as a sprinter skips over the hurdles in a race. (Tomorrow the other side: feminine follies that make marriage difficult for husbands.)

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

A Deschappelles Coup.

A Deschappelles Coup with a ten-spot! Whoever heard of such a thing! The Deschappelles Coup is popularly associated with the sacrifice of a king by one defender in the hope that his partner holds the queen. In the following deal one player made an extraordinary sacrifice of a ten-spot in the hope that his partner held the nine.

The bidding:

1♠ Pass 1♠ Pass
2NT Pass 2NT Pass
3NT Pass Pass Pass

West opened the three of hearts which despite the strong clubs held by East and West, turned out to be the best lead. East's queen of hearts was topped by South's ace and declarer could count three heart tricks, two spade tricks, three diamonds and one club provided he did not lose too many tricks before establishing nine for himself.

As the cards lay, declarer's best plan would have been to surrender any chance for the diamond finesse and lead that suit immediately from his own hand. Since a successful diamond finesse, however, would make his task much easier, he decided to lead the diamonds from dummy, finessing against East's possible queen. South therefore led the six of spades to get into dummy.

Meanwhile West had been counting the hands also, and it was here that he made his brilliant play. He knew declarer could win three heart tricks and two spades and establish at least two and possibly three diamond tricks. In view of his and the dummy's holding in spades and diamonds, he also knew South must hold at least an honor-trick in clubs. But

Lady Duff Gordon Passes in London

LONDON, April 21.—(P)—Lady Duff Gordon, one of the last of the dwindling survivors of the ill-fated Titanic and elder sister of Elinor Glyn, the novelist, died today at a Putney nursing home.

With her husband, the late Sir Cosmo Edmund Duff Gordon, Lady Duff Gordon figured as a witness in the inquiry conducted in England into the sinking ship in a lifeboat. Formerly a well-known modiste, Lady Duff Gordon urged adoption and maintenance of the short skirt.

MRS. EVA ODOM. SHREVEPORT, La., April 21.—(P)—Mrs. Eva Odom, 52, wife of O. D. Odom, former owner of the Hazenback-Wallace circus and herself former co-owner of the Rex hotel here, died early today following a short illness.

TALMADGE IS OBJECT OF GORMAN TIRADE

ROME, Ga., April 21.—(P)—Francis J. Gorman, first vice president of the United Textile Workers, in an address here Saturday said Governor Eugene Talmadge "went into office under false pretenses."

"He gave labor to understand that he would support them," Gorman said. "As soon as he was elected he called out the troops and he has had them out ever since. Labor won't forget." Referring to the current controversy over the cotton processing tax, Gorman charged that certain textile manufacturers are doing now what they accused the unions of doing in the general strike last fall.

"Mills that are closing now because they oppose the processing tax," he said, "are really striking against the government. That's the charge they made against the unions last September."

unless this honor-trick was the Ace and East held all three remaining honors, to attack the club suit for the setting tricks appeared hopeless. This left only spades from which to garner the tricks to beat the contract.

On declarer's six of spades lead West therefore played the ten, and dummy won with the queen. The diamond finesse lost to West's queen and that player now completed the train of his fine reasoning by leading the spade king and picking up South's jack. It did not matter whether or not South withheld dummy's ace on this trick as a spade continuation by West doomed the contract due to East's sure card of entry, the ace of clubs. Declarer could not prevent East-West from winning two diamonds, two spades and the club ace after West's drop of the ten of spades had unlocked that suit for his partner.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

What To Do About Eyes Tired From Too Much Looking

BY MIGNON.

There are so many things to look at these days, the fact that women's eyes get tired is not to be wondered at. Office work, window shopping, going to the movies, playing golf in the wind, driving in an open car—all help produce eye fatigue. You won't know how essential an eye-lotion is until you have to use one for a couple of weeks.

I have a couple of favorites in these lotions. One of them, if I'm not mistaken, contains menthol, and the other camphor. You can use them with pads of cotton thoroughly saturated and placed over the eyes for fifteen minutes, or you can use them with an eye-cup. If you use an eye-cup, be sure to keep it clean. Don't stick it in the bathroom cabinet, let it get dusty, and then use it without washing it.

There isn't anything about which women have to be as careful as

Traffic Toll Is Growing Fast; Insure While There Is Time

If you were standing on the edge of the grave, would you rush for insurance protection?
The answer is obvious.
If your life were threatened, would you insure your family against want and suffering?
Again the answer is obvious.
Consider the ever-growing wave of traffic accidents and fatalities. You know that every day hundreds in this section of the country fall victim to it. In the city or the country, the peril is ever present. Can you afford to take chances by assuming that this section of the country fall victim to it. The insurance offered you through The Atlanta Constitution is issued by The North American Accident Insurance Company of Chicago, Ill., which company has already paid Atlanta Constitution subscribers over $200,000. The insurance is offered to subscribers of the daily and Sunday Constitution and immediate dependent members of the subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 60 on the one sub-

Daniel Bell Slated To Hold Budget Job

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—Daniel W. Bell, spry young civil service employee who is running Uncle Sam's budget bureau, today appeared slated to hold that job as long as he wants.
This development would mean the directorship of the budget—a political prize President Roosevelt considers equivalent to a cabinet post—would continue unfilled.
Not only was Bell's work as acting director of the budget reported to have been highly pleasing to both Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Morgenthau, but there was even talk of creating a new title for him—that of special assistant to the secretary of the treasury in charge of accounts and the budget.

Dean Defeats Pirates

ARKY VAUGHAN SLAPS HOMER, RUNS SHUT OUT

PITTSBURGH, April 21.—(AP)—An Easter crowd of 28,000 saw the world champion St. Louis Cardinals defeat the Pirates this afternoon, 6 to 1. The victory gave the Cards two wins in the three-game series and thrilled the biggest crowd at a game here since 1920.

Jerome (Dixie) Dean won his first game of the season as he held the Cards to five hits. He was robbed of a shutout when Arky Vaughan clouted a homer into the right field stands in the second to tie the score and match a circuit wallop into the same spot by Ripper Collins in the St. Louis half of the inning.

Guy Bush worked seven innings for Pittsburgh. He was solved for nine hits and his support wavered. Pepper Martin scored from first on a hit-and-run single in the fifth when Babe Herman tossed the ball to second after firing the ball.

Durocher's triple with two on base in the fourth put the Cards in front and from there on they never were threatened.

Dean dished up fine speed, a good curve and a change of pace under a warm sun.

Collins opened the fourth with a walk and Delancy singled. P. Warner made a spectacular diving catch of Moore's liner to help Bush, but Guy unwound a wild pitch and Durocher then smashed his three-bagger.

Martin singled in the fifth and sprinted around the paths on Medwick's little hit to left.

Whitehead singled in the seventh and when Herman fumbled Martin's hit, the lead-off double, Rothrock walked in the ninth and Martin whipped a double to right to score him with the sixth tally.

DETROIT TAKES 13-INNING GAME FROM CLEVELAND

Schoolboy Rowe Wins First Game as Relief Pitcher.

DETROIT, April 21.—(AP)—Marvin Owen's sizzling grounder to short, scoring Charley Gehring from third with the deciding run, broke up a 13-inning ball game between Detroit and Cleveland this afternoon with Detroit on the long end of a 3-to-2 score.

Monte Pearson, going the full route for the Tribe, allowed 10 hits, but Detroit bunched blows in the sixth and 13th to give Schoolboy Rowe his first victory of the season. Rowe went in for Earl Bickner, left-handed, at the start of the seventh and held the Indians to four hits and no runs.

The Schoolboy was in rare form and pitching with blinding speed.

Fylak gave Cleveland its first score with a home run in the third. The Tribe counted again in the sixth when Hughes doubled, advanced on Voornik's single and scored on Goslin's error.

Detroit tied it up in the last of the sixth with White's three-bagger, and three singles. Cleveland had the bases loaded with one out in the 13th, but blew it when Earl Bickner and Trosky died out. Gehring's double, a sacrifice and two intentional passes set the stage for the winning run. Owen smashed one at Hughes as Gehring romped home.

Harris Rim & Wheel Co. Offers Free Carburetion Adjustment, Diagnosis

C. D. BEDENBAUGH
TO BE HERE 2 DAYS
TO AID MOTORISTS

Factory Expert and Engineer Will Serve Auto Owners at W. Peachtree Shop Tuesday, Wednesday.

For two days only—Tuesday and Wednesday, April 23 and 24—the Harris Rim & Wheel Co. will extend to the motoring public a free carburetor adjustment and an accurate diagnosis of the motor, under the personal supervision of C. D. Bedenbaugh, a factory expert and an engineer of recognized skill in this line of work.

The Harris Rim & Wheel Co. considers itself fortunate to have Mr. Bedenbaugh's services for these two days only, due to the fact his services and his knowledge are in great demand over the vast territory he covers.

The carburetor and ignition department of the Harris Rim & Wheel Co. is in charge of "Red" Hoyt, recognized and acknowledged as the outstanding carburetor expert of the south, who has able and experienced assistance, on ignition, in Clark Bontman. This department is not only manned by the best available experts in their respective lines, in the south, but is also equipped with the latest apparatus, such as the Sun motor tester, the Engleheart gas analyzer, the Zenith gas mileage tester and the Stromberg carburetor tester.

Carburetion and ignition, says Mr. Hoyt, are the two most important features of an automobile. "Our Sun motor analyzer," he states, "will tell you at once, before your eyes, the exact condition of the motor. If your carburetor is too rich, or too lean, or out of adjustment, our fuel analyzer will tell you at once, and the gas tester will give you an accurate reading of the number of miles you are getting on every gallon of gasoline. It is not a guessing game, these machines. Your car checked by these machines."

For economy, speed, comfort, safety and many miles of pleasant, dependable driving, he adds, the following nine points should be checked every 5,000 miles: Battery, battery cable, timing, ignition wires, coil, spark plugs, points, fuel pump and carburetor.

Mr. Bedenbaugh, a factory expert on motor troubles, will be at the Harris Rim & Wheel Co.'s plant at 404 West Peachtree street, N. W., two days only—Tuesday and Wednesday—and will be glad to adjust your carburetor and check your car free of charge. Just drive into the service department, either day, and take advantage of this generous offer.

The Harris Rim & Wheel Company, in addition to the work of its recently established carburetor department, is widely known for its expert workmanship in the repairing and straightening of wood, wire and disc wheels for automobiles, trucks and buses. There is nothing in the line of wheel repairing, it is said, which the company is not prepared to do with great credit.

The company, as its name implies, specializes in this phase of automotive work. It is completely equipped with the most modern machinery and appliances to turn out workmanship of precision and perfection. New wheels of every description may be procured from the Harris Rim & Wheel Company for replacement on any make of car or truck. Rims and rim parts also are carried and repaired.

Men of long experience in this line of work are employed, to insure absolute accuracy.

The company also is prepared to supply brake linings, springs, brake drums, power brakes, carburetor parts, windshield wipers and other parts.

Atlanta Envelope Company Keeps Pace With Industry

This photograph shows just a small part of the modern envelope-making and printing machinery installed at the Atlanta Envelope Company plant, 505-11 Stewart avenue, S. W.

Sig Guthman, president of the Atlanta Envelope Company, was telling a reporter who called on him the other day, about the 43 years his company has been in business in Atlanta, how times have changed, and the great forward strides the industry has made.

"When we first started we had only about 15 employees," said Mr. Guthman, "and today we keep 65 to 70 people busy all day long. That's a pretty good size pay roll to keep here in Atlanta. To be honest with you we could even add another 15 or 20 more employees to our pay roll if more 'made in the south' envelopes were bought in the south. Why, our machines have a capacity of nearly a million envelopes a day—and that means fast service."

"The Atlanta Envelope Company has been in business here for 43 years," continued Mr. Guthman, "and times have certainly changed. It is 25 or more years ago that we pioneered in the manufacture of commercial envelopes in the south. Before that time, southern buyers had little alternative but to go to eastern and northern envelope manufacturers—so we believed it would be well worth our while to build a plant in Atlanta where they could get these supplies without delay. Accordingly, we installed the most complete equipment of precision and perfection. New wheels of every description may be procured from the Harris Rim & Wheel Company for replacement on any make of car or truck. Rims and rim parts also are carried and repaired."

GOAT MILK KEEPS SUMMER HEALTH AT NORMAL PEAK

Westwyndes Dairy Provides Daily Delivery of Excellent Food-Drink To Fight Germ Enemies.

Atlantans who have learned of the health-building properties of goat's milk are turning in ever-increasing numbers to the Westwyndes Goat Dairy to supply the safeguard against summer illness. Many others, it is anticipated, will discover the secret of health in goat's milk in the months to come, and H. G. Tye, manager of the Westwyndes dairy, predicts an unprecedented demand for this nourishing food-drink during the summer.

Westwyndes goat's milk, it is pointed out, comes only from pure-bred Nubian goats, carefully selected for the richness and flavor of their milk. The Nubians, Mr. Tye asserts, are among the cleanest of animals, and at the Westwyndes dairy countless safeguards are thrown about the heads to insure the production of an absolutely clean, pure and wholesome milk.

Often called the sanitary officer of the body, goat's milk exerts a powerful health building influence, since it quickly attacks and routs such threatening bodily enemies as germs, bacterial gases, mortification acids, calcic and bacterial toxins and other agents which destroy bone and tissue life. It wards off the penetration of oxygen into the hard, glossy flourin-made surfaces of bones and teeth, thus preventing premature decay.

Goat's milk, Mr. Tye points out, is recommended by physicians for countless bodily disorders, chief among which are all types of stomach troubles. Since it is composed of very small fat globules, easily digested by the most delicate stomachs, it is excellent for ulcerated stomachs. Sufferers of acidosis, it is stated, have been put on a diet of goat's milk in countless instances with most beneficial results.

This remarkable food-beverage, it is asserted, is rich in calcium and in its twin-brother, fluorin, a vital element which is antiseptic, antipyretic, antiparasitic and antiphlogistic, which wages a constant war on germs and parasites which creep into the system to take hold and destroy health.

Goat's milk is recommended as a brain-accelerator, a vitality builder and a mental efficiency builder and a daily ration of it, it is declared, will keep the body healthy and physically fit for his work.

Goat's milk has been found to supply a chemical factor of vital importance not only in the diet of humans but in that of animals. It is in growing demand by zoos and kennels, where great difficulty is sometimes experienced in trying to raise animals out of their natural state. Westwyndes, in one instance, furnished one of the local dog kennels a daily supply of goat's milk as a special diet for a litter of very fine but undernourished bird dogs and their mother. After two weeks of goat's milk feeding, all

As stated, every precaution is taken at the Westwyndes Goat Dairy to insure the production of clean, wholesome milk free from bacteria, and every goat in the Westwyndes herd is tested for tuberculosis (a disease milk goats rarely, if ever, have) and abortive fever. These precautions are taken, first, to comply with the city ordinances, and second, to insure for Westwyndes customers the best food-drink that can be produced.

Goat's milk can be obtained from either of three Atlanta stores—Gower's Pharmacy at 1582 Piedmont avenue, N. E., Pitts-Bennett Pharmacy at 1130 Euclid avenue, N. E. and Wender & Roberts, Inc., at 3078 Peachtree road.

John H. Harland Co. Renders to Business Highly Specialized Office Supply Service

In this handsome, well-constructed daylight building at the corner of Highland avenue and Jackson streets, the John H. Harland Company maintains a highly specialized plant for the lithographing and printing of securities and many other forms of business printing. The company also operates a retail store at 8 Pryor street, where virtually everything needed in an office may be found.

The John H. Harland Company, Atlanta lithographing and printing establishment, which since its founding has served hundreds of business houses throughout the south, is riding the crest of an increased popularity, according to John H. Harland, president.

It is natural, says Mr. Harland, that executives of new businesses or old, opening or reopening offices in the southeast, should seek an all-inclusive service to fulfill their office needs. Likewise, it is logical that they should adopt the John H. Harland Company to serve these requirements on account of its long and highly specialized experience in serving business offices.

In addition to its lithographing and printing department, the company maintains a completely stocked retail store at 8 Pryor street, in the Ten Pyor Street building, where may be found every kind of office equipment and other office needs, from pins and typewriter ribbons to filing cabinets. The manufacturing department, located in a specially constructed daylight plant at Highland avenue and Jackson streets, handles virtually every type of lithographing and business printing, though specializing in the production of securities and insurance forms. Here, the most modern and approved machinery, manned by highly skilled craftsmen, insures the finest work of its kind—a fact to which countless business executives will attest.

Throughout the John H. Harland organization, knowledge of the product or material handled is stressed, and buyers of any merchandise handled by the company know they are dealing with men who are thoroughly acquainted with what they sell.

where so much improved in condition that casual visitors to the kennel did not recognize them as the same dogs which began the diet a fortnight previous.

The calcium and fluorine content of goat's milk, it is pointed out, is particularly valuable to growing children. In these hot summer days to come, it is most important that mothers should watch carefully the diet of their children, and in this they will find goat's milk not only helpful but beneficial, since the elements included in its serve as bone and tissue builders.

Fluorin, it is pointed out is found in only a few foods, but is a vital element, the lack of which encourages pus formation disturbs the functions of the bone marrow and interferes with the manufacture of red corpuscles in the blood. A bone cement, its absence oftentimes causes bones to crumble, break easily or decay. For this reason, goat's milk should be an article of daily diet for every person, from the baby to those in advanced years.

BUSINESS COURSE VALUE STRESSED BY CRICHTON HEAD

College Graduates Are Given Two-Fold Advantage by Such Training, Miss Reid Declares.

The value of business training, especially for the college graduate, in these days of strenuous competition, is stressed by Miss E. Katherine Reid, president and present owner of Crichton's Business College, which during the half century since its establishment has graduated many thousands of students.

For the college graduate, Miss Reid points out, a thorough business training is doubly important, in that it provides for him or her a two-fold advantage when selecting a career.

Present-day requirements, she states, necessitate a college training for the future teacher, and a business course affords for teachers a training which equips him or her to far more ably handle the complicated duties of that career.

"We are constantly called upon," says Miss Reid, "for teachers, because the thoroughness of Crichton business training fits our students more adequately for this work."

The Crichton Business College, which is situated in the second floor overlooking Plaza way, Pryor street and Alabama street, features the most improved methods of instruction, offering courses in shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, accounting, mimeographing, filing, dictaphone operation, English, spelling, letter writing and business administration.

"Our courses," says Miss Reid, "are designed to give the maximum amount of efficiency in a minimum length of time. Efficiency, in this connection, is allowed for the completion of a course, pupils may progress according to their abilities and requirements."

Both Crichton and Pitman shorthand are taught at the Crichton Business College. Of these, stress is laid upon the Pitman, taught according to the simplified method of instruction, of which the school is the originator, and a lifetime devoted to study of virtually every system of any consequence known.

In the Pitman system, Miss Reid points out, Crichton's Business College offers a correspondence course which is exceedingly popular. Complete lessons may be mailed in, or, in the case of local students, brought in during spare time, for correction and criticism.

In this connection, Miss Reid calls attention to the fact the school is having an increasing number of calls for teachers, for, as the merits of the Pitman system become more widely known, more and more high schools and colleges are introducing it.

Founded a half century ago in a small room over what is now known as Grant's department store, the present Crichton's Business College has been developed into one of the finest institutions of its kind in the southeast. Whereas its equipment once included only one desk and two typewriters, it now includes some of the most modern and approved machines available. Once a one-man faculty school, it now employs a corps of some of the best trained teachers in the south.
